Profile

Senior Events Manager with 12 years experience Organizes 15-20 corporate events annually Manages $3M annual event budget Average event: 100-500 attendees Reports to C-suite leadership Data-driven decision maker

Goals

Quick, secure photo delivery to employees
Track engagement and measure ROI
Control access with email whitelisting
Generate reports for leadership
Ensure data privacy and compliance
Demonstrate event value beyond attendance

Quote

"Last year's leadership summit cost $250,000. When the CFO asked what we got for it, all I had was attendance numbers and some nice photos. Now I can show exactly how many people engaged, shared, and downloaded. That's how I justify next year's budget."

— Jordan Chen, Senior Events Manager

Frustration

No way to track photo engagement or ROI. Privacy concerns with employee photos. Can't prove event value with hard data. Post-event follow-up has low response rates. Budget justification difficult without metrics Leadership asks: "What did we get for that investment?"
